American Cyber Becomes Subcontractor on AONS Directorate Contract

Clifton, VA. - April 2017 - On April 27, American Cyber partner, CACI, was awarded the Architecture, Operations, Networks and Space (AONS) Directorate Contract of the U.S. Army Chief Information Officer (CIO/G-6). Since CIO/G-6 is American Cyber's Government Sponsor for the Mentor Protégé Program, American Cyber is proud to support them with CACI on this $48 million dollar prime contract.

The AONS Directorate Contract supports the Department of the Army with a wide range of theater, tactical and strategic implementations. Its key functions are to: "provide oversight of assigned joint military satellite communications programs and projects; manage the Army Information Systems Security Program and provide oversight for the Army Spectrum Program."

In a recent news release published by Business Wire, CACI President and CEO, Ken Asbury, stated: "This win enhances CACI's position as a leading provider of enterprise IT solutions that help improve the efficiency, reliability, and cost-effectiveness of IT services for our government customers. By leveraging our deep expertise in this area and agile software development, we enable the U.S. Army to more rapidly equip soldiers worldwide with the advanced technologies they need to succeed in an increasingly dynamic global threat environment."

American Cyber looks forward to working with CACI on this contract, as the win signifies our growing position in the IT Support Solutions industry.
