American Cyber Becomes Subcontractor on PL AIT Contract

American Cyber's partner, Akima, has been awarded a contract by the US Army Program Executive Office Enterprise Information Systems' (PEO EIS) Product Lead for Allied Information Technology (PL AIT) to provide a full range of information technology products, services, solutions and customer support to improve information technology and cyber defense capabilities for customers outside the United States.

PL AIT provides security assistance to foreign allies and partner nations around the globe, enabling foreign partners to better secure and defend their individual cybersecurity systems. PL AIT's work enhances coalition building and interoperability and increases the readiness among allied partners in complex and potentially hostile security environments.

"The award of this contract enables Akima and American Cyber to directly assist a client in need of substantial information technology and cyber defense capability upgrades," said Andrew Zaleski, American Cyber's Senior Technologist. "The partnership between American Cyber and Akima has produced a team that is poised to produce stellar results for our new client and we are very pleased to be part of this team," Zaleski continued.
